

Happy Hearts, Creative Minds: Drama, Storytelling and Puppets for joyful Learners

Teaching is, at its heart, an act of creation. In this panel, a puppeteer, a storyteller, and an actress come together to reveal how the arts can transform the classroom into a space of imagination, emotion, and discovery. Through dialogue and shared experiences, they will explore how puppetry, narrative, and performance can engage students in deeper learning, foster empathy, and give voice to multiple ways of knowing. Participants will be invited to reimagine teaching practices that not only inform but also move and inspire.
